We hereby announce that we have prevailed in the patent infringement lawsuit (Tokyo District Court Case No. 2024 (Wa) 70064) filed by Dainihon Jochugiku Co., Ltd. (hereinafter "Dainihon Jochugiku") concerning our product "Osu Dake No-mat" (hereinafter "our product").

Although this matter does not meet the criteria for timely disclosure as stipulated by the Tokyo Stock Exchange rules, we are voluntarily disclosing it as we deem it useful information. Consequently, some items and details of the disclosure have been omitted.

1. Background and Details of This Litigation

This litigation commenced on March 1, 2024, when Dainihon Jochugiku filed a lawsuit with the Tokyo District Court alleging that our company's acts of manufacturing etc., our products infringe upon the patent right (hereinafter referred to as "the Patent Right") pertaining to Patent No. 7026270 (hereinafter referred to as "the Subject Patent Right") held by Dainihon Jochugiku. In response, our company has consistently argued throughout this litigation that our products do not fall within the scope of the Subject Patent Right and that the Patent Right is invalid.

On December 17, 2025, the Tokyo District Court ruled in favor of our company's position, determining that the patent in question is invalid and dismissing the claim filed by Dainihon Jochugiku.

We view this ruling as recognition of our company's validity and a fair judgment. Should Dainihon Jochugiku file an appeal, we will continue to assert our legitimacy in the appellate court proceedings.

We regard intellectual property rights, including patents, as vital management resources. Following this ruling, we will further expand and utilize our intellectual property rights while respecting the intellectual property rights of others.

Continuing under our management philosophy, "We act to live in harmony with the Earth." we will pursue customer-centric product development and deliver high-quality products, including the "Osu Dake No-mat," to many customers.
