2. Reasons for revision

During the current fiscal year, we have continued to implement various measures aimed at enhancing profitability, including reviewing our product mix, renovating existing stores, and optimizing head office expenses. However, amid rising costs driven by persistently high raw material prices, increased labor expenses, and higher energy costs, coupled with intensifying consumer thriftiness and selective spending, the recovery in customer traffic and sales has been slower than initially anticipated.

To respond to this business environment, we are implementing measures across all formats aimed at enhancing customer motivation to visit and satisfaction levels. These include realigning price points, introducing new products, strengthening seasonal offerings, and enhancing brand recognition. Furthermore, in developing new formats, we are working to strengthen our revenue base. This includes acquiring new customer segments by providing value tailored to regional characteristics, while also advancing foundational preparations aimed at collaboration with existing formats and expanding usage opportunities. However, these efforts were insufficient to offset the decline in revenue during the second quarter. Consequently, revenue, operating profit, ordinary profit, and profit for the period are all expected to fall below the previously announced forecasts.

Please note that this forecast is based on information available at the present time, and actual results may vary due to changes in the business environment and other factors.
