Reasons for revision

In the Industrial Systems Division, sales of equipment and systems for basic industries in Japan, as well as seismic observation equipment and vibration measuring instruments, sales in the resource and measurement device-related business, etc., performed strongly. Meanwhile, in the Industrial Materials Division, the commodity plastics and engineering plastics business, which became a consolidated subsidiary in the previous fiscal year, will contribute to full-year financial results, and sales of automobile parts materials for the North American market performed well.

Based on these factors, the Company has decided to upwardly revise its full-year consolidated financial results forecast.
