1. Qualitative Information on Semi-annual Financial Results

(1) Overview of Operating Results

Net sales in the six months ended September 30, 2026 amounted to ¥52,130 million, an increase of 22.2% year-on-year, reflecting increased sales in all segments. Operating profit came in at ¥3,944 million, an increase of 161.7% year-on-year, primarily attributable to profit growth from the sales increase in the CTC segment, despite reduced profit in the VCCS segment due to factors such as rising costs caused by the weakening of the yen and the recording of expenses associated with the optimization of the production structure at the production site in China. Ordinary profit amounted to ¥3,282 million, an increase of 152.1% year-on-year, primarily attributable to higher operating profit, despite the recording of foreign exchange losses of ¥650 million resulting from the appreciation of the yen at the end of the period. Profit attributable to owners of parent amounted to ¥2,004 million, an increase of 50.4% year-on-year, primarily attributable to higher ordinary profit, despite the recording of a loss on retirement of non-current assets of ¥464 million resulting from a review of technical software development.

The average exchange rate for the six months ended September 30, 2026 was ¥159.49 against the US dollar (¥146.01 in the same period of the previous fiscal year), while the closing rate was ¥157.35 against the US dollar (¥159.88 at the end of the previous fiscal year).

＜VCCS＞ (Core product: Antenna for Vehicle)

The automotive market, the main market for this segment, lacked strength overall, mainly due to weakening demand and intensified competition in China, despite solid new vehicle sales in Japan. A breakdown by region shows that the number of units sold in Japan increased, while sales in the United States were flat year-on-year and sales in China declined.

In these circumstances, sales of antennas for automobile manufacturers, including mainstay products such as shark fin antennas and GPS antennas, increased year-on-year, driven by growth in net sales in the overseas market due to the weakening of the yen and increased orders resulting from production being brought forward, despite signs of softening demand in some regions.

As a result, sales for this segment increased year-on-year to ¥28,555 million (up 4.8% year-on-year). Segment profit amounted to ¥143 million (down 84.0% year-on-year), due to factors including expenses associated with the optimization of the production structure at the production site in China, higher costs at production sites in Vietnam and the Philippines resulting from the depreciation of the yen, increased transportation costs due to higher crude oil prices, and soaring raw material prices.

＜CTC＞ (Core Product: Semiconductor Testing Socket and Probe Card)

The semiconductor testing market, the main market for this segment, showed strong growth overall. This was driven by increased investment in cutting-edge semiconductors amid expanding demand related to generative AI.

In these circumstances, sales of jigs for semiconductor back-end testing, the mainstay product of the Group, increased year-on-year, due to an increase in orders for testing sockets for servers and other logic semiconductors, as well as a significant increase in orders driven by expanding demand for testing related to generative AI. Sales of jigs for semiconductor front-end testing decreased year-on-year, mainly due to sluggish sales of MEMS probe cards (YPX) for high-frequency electronic components testing, despite a recovery trend in the turnkey business, which offers one-stop solutions including peripheral devices.

As a result, sales for this segment significantly increased year-on-year to ¥15,170 million (up 69.4% year-on-year). Segment profit amounted to ¥3,579 million (up 345.1% year-on-year), mainly due to profit growth from increased sales, despite increased costs driven by higher raw material prices and increased outsourcing expenses.

＜FC / MD＞ (FC Core Product: Fine spring connector for electronics) (MD Core Product: Medical devices and units)

In the market for mobile communication terminals, the main market for this segment, sales of wearable terminals are expected to grow given their diversification and greater sophistication. On the other hand, the unit shipments of smartphones declined and remained at a low level. In the POS terminal market, steady growth is expected in a wide range of industries, including logistics and manufacturing, with a view toward improvements in operational efficiency through information management, and demand remained firm.

In these circumstances, net sales for the FC business, for which fine spring connectors act as core products, increased year-on-year, reflecting strong orders received for POS terminals, despite sluggish sales for wearable devices, such as wireless earbuds.

In the MD business, net sales increased year-on-year, supported by steady sales of both catheter components and unit products for a major domestic medical device manufacturer, one of the Company's key customers, despite sluggish sales for the venture ecosystem in which the Company participates as a manufacturing partner.

As a result, sales for this segment increased year-on-year to ¥6,613 million (up 19.7% year-on-year). Segment profit amounted to ¥510 million (up 113.4% year-on-year), due to profit growth from increased sales, as well as partial progress in passing on cost increases, such as rising raw material prices, to selling prices.

＜Incubation Center＞ (Core Product: Antenna and providing solutions for MaaS/IoT)

The MaaS/IoT market, the main market for this segment, is expected to grow steadily, reflecting the advance of mobility including car sharing, and the widespread adoption of IoT connecting everything through the Internet.

In these circumstances, the Platform business made progress in expanding sales of MIMO antennas utilizing smart antenna technologies for IoT, and vehicle key management solutions for MaaS and rental cars. The Systems Business Promotion Division, which has been included in this segment since the previous fiscal year, focused on expanding sales of IoT communication and sensing solutions, as well as disaster prevention and monitoring systems.

As a result, sales for this segment increased year-on-year to ¥1,787 million (up 86.9% year-on-year). Segment loss amounted to ¥298 million (a loss of ¥453 million in the same period of the previous fiscal year), mainly due to the effects of reductions in fixed costs and other expenses, despite continued up-front investment aimed at creating new businesses.

(2) Overview of Financial Position

(Assets)

Assets stood at ¥93,437 million at the end of the interim period of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2027 (an increase of ¥4,079 million compared with the end of the previous fiscal year). This was due primarily to increases of ¥2,039 million in inventories, ¥867 million in property, plant and equipment, and ¥1,501 million in investment securities.

The increase in inventories was mainly due to an increase in raw materials in preparation for the expansion of production and sales activities resulting from an increase in orders in the CTC segment.

(Liabilities)

Liabilities stood at ¥31,466 million at the end of the interim period of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2027 (an increase of ¥2,449 million compared with the end of the previous fiscal year) due primarily to increases of ¥715 million in accounts payable, ¥984 million in short-term borrowings, and ¥534 million in accrued expenses included in other current liabilities.

The increase in accounts payable was mainly due to an increase in purchases of materials and components resulting from an increase in orders in the CTC segment.

(Net assets)

Net assets amounted to ¥61,971 million at the end of the interim period under review (an increase of ¥1,629 million from the end of the previous fiscal year). This mainly reflects a decrease of ¥228 million in foreign currency translation adjustment, the recording of profit attributable to owners of parent of ¥2,004 million, and dividends paid of ¥731 million.

(Equity ratio)

The equity ratio was 66.2% at the end of the interim period under review (down 1.2 points from the end of the previous fiscal year).

(3) Future Outlook

Our forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2027 is based on an assumed exchange rate of ¥155 against the US dollar. Based on this assumption, our forecasts for full-year net sales and profits are as follows.

Our forecasts for consolidated net sales and net sales by segment have been revised as shown in the table below, based on the results for the six months ended September 30, 2026 and the latest order forecast.

Regarding operating profit, the VCCS segment is expected to see a decline in profit for the full year, mainly due to the recording of expenses associated with the optimization of the production structure at the production site in China. In the CTC segment, although sales are expected to increase, the operating profit forecast remains unchanged, mainly because an increase in start-up costs associated with expanded production capacity is anticipated. In the FC/MD segment, in light of the increase in profit during the interim consolidated accounting period, profit is expected to increase for the full fiscal year. Based on these factors, our forecast for operating profit is revised as shown in the table below.

Our forecasts for ordinary profit and profit attributable to owners of parent have been revised as shown in the table below, which incorporate a foreign exchange loss of ¥1,000 million based on an assumed exchange rate of ¥155 against the US dollar.

Notes：

1 The total segment profit is the same as the operating profit on the Semi-annual consolidated statement.

2 The Others category is a business segment not included in reportable segments and includes the temporary staffing business and other businesses.

3 The reconciling amounts for inter-segment sales and transfers are a method for the elimination of inter-segment transactions.

2 Impairment of fixed assets and goodwill, etc. by reportable segment

(Significant Impairment Loss on Non-current Assets)

An impairment loss of ¥14 million was recognized in the FC/MD segment.

(Significant Subsequent Events)

At the meeting of the Board of Directors held on November 10, 2026, the Company resolved to make an additional investment aimed at further expanding production capacity in the CTC segment (Semiconductor Test Contactors Business).

1 Background and Purpose of the Investment

At the meeting of the Board of Directors held on June 19, 2026, the Company resolved to make an investment to expand the production capacity of contact probes. Since then, market demand, particularly for high-performance semiconductors used in generative AI and data centers, has continued to expand. The Company has therefore determined that it is necessary to establish a stable supply framework with capacity exceeding the level contemplated under the previously approved investment plan. Accordingly, the Company has resolved to make an additional investment in production facilities and equipment.

2 Overview of the Investment

Products: Contact probes and test sockets (products related to the CTC segment)

Production Bases: Japan, Malaysia, and Vietnam (planned)

Details of Investment: Expansion and construction of facilities and introduction of new production equipment

Investment Schedule: Orders are scheduled to be placed in phases beginning in November 2026, with the investment expected to be completed by the fiscal year ending March 2031.

Total Investment: Approximately ¥7.0 billion

3 Material Impact of the Investment on Operations and Production Activities

The impact of this additional investment on the Company’s consolidated financial results for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2027 is expected to be minimal.
